Fisher's Country Store welcomes Christmas shoppers

By Linda Williams

IT'S COOKIE-baking time, and a good place to find necessary ingredients for Christmas goodies is Fisher's Country Store on old Business 220 in Cessna.

Owner Mike Fisher says that while the store is busy all year, Christmas is especially so. Fisher's sells flour, sugar, brown sugar and all the spices you might need in bulk and at a price much lower than most chain stores.

Baking supplies are not the only holiday items in demand at Fisher's. Party trays of lunch meat and cheese for family or office gatherings are always popular. The deli makes up the largest part of Fisher's year-round business. Bulk supplies are second.

The concept for a modern country store began in 1981 in the spare bedroom of a trailer on the former Steve Kauffman farm on Hoagland Road. From there, the store moved to the garage and eventually to the 3,200-square-foot building where it is today. In June 1990, it was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. John Fisher, and in 2003, a 2,300-square-foot addition was built.

The Fishers have five children but only one chose to become the store owner. Mike was a teacher for four years before taking over the store's responsibilities. He and his wife have 12 children, and are hopeful that at least one of them will someday run the business.

Melanie Karns of Everett is the assistant manager, and there are an additional 40 employees.

"We have good help," Mike says, "but could use more."

Like many other businesses, the store has had difficulty finding and hiring staff and keeping items stocked.

"Our candy, which comes in every variety, has always been popular," Mike says, "but now, we never know what we will have. One week, it is the licorice that is scarce; the next ... the caramel. You just never know."

with the Fisher's label — are among the most popular items. They include pickles, relish, salsa, peaches, and some rather unusual options, like pickled mushrooms and Brussels sprouts.

Produce is bought from local growers during the summer months. Some of the ready-to-prepare baked goods are from Martin's in Lancaster.

While deli items are popular for party trays, they are also a hit for the average household. Local organizations holding hoagie sales make their own with ingredients from Fisher's. Karns says it is normal to get an order for 12,000 slices of meat and cheese for a hoagie fundraiser.

The store offers other items that addition. Specials are offered at various times of the month and are posted on the store's Facebook page. Customers can also email or text Fisher's to learn more about deals and discounts. The store offers beef, pork, chicken and seafood.

The country store has stayed up to date with technology, and Mike is the IT guy with some help from local consultants. There is a backup generator if there is a power outage so freezers can continue to operate, and backups for the computers, too.

Mike says that no matter the equipment, the most important part of the business is the people.

"We value our employees and our customers," he says. "Without them, we would not be here."

Meanwhile, despite his busy schedule, Mike still finds time to volunteer at the Bedford County Jail. Seven of the Fishers' children attend the Allegheny Valley Foundation Christian School in Schellsburg.

"We have a van that accommodates all seven," Mike says, "and the oldest one drives." ❁ aren't available in all supermarkets. Fresh flowers from a local gardener have been popular all summer. Mike's mom makes aprons, and a local crafter makes wood items. A variety of liniments are also available to relieve aches and pains.

In March 2015, the store added a café that offers sandwiches and ice cream. Folks can grab lunch and sit at outside tables to enjoy the surrounding countryside.
